

Application for Graduate Assistantship

Graduate Assistantships, including Graduate Research Assistantships (GRA) and Graduate Laboratory Assistantships (GLA), provide students with an opportunity to work with a faculty member on various research projects and instructional activities. Assistantships are awarded to qualified students and require a specific work commitment for the semester. In exchange for the work commitment, GRA and GLA receive a full or partial tuition waiver and a financial stipend. Students working as GRA and GLA are required to pay mandatory fees (e.g., student activity, health and athletic fees). Students receiving full tuition are required to purchase mandatory health insurance unless they receive a waiver for this based on their personal health insurance.

If you are interested in being considered for a graduate assistantship, please complete this form, attach your current resume and return it to the graduate program director three weeks prior to the beginning of the semester, preferably by e-mail: Mildred Cody, Ph.D, RD, Head, Division of Nutrition, P.O.
